

Abstract

Device for automatically sorting periodic data records

Device for automatically sorting periodic data records, in particular for representing the motion of parts in the human body from individual images, an examination monitor with a storage device for the data records being assigned a measuring and evaluation device which measures in the data records two separate points or a line of the moving part and, on the basis of their changes in distance or phase shifts, sorts the data records into a cyclic sequence.

Figure 1

200013284

Key to figure

Left-hand heart valve

Right-hand heart valve